SEN. BENJ. SEWELL

Again Skins Hovermale of Campton Courier.

CAMPTON, KY., June 12, '07

EDITOR NEWS:

Strike a worm, a la Hovermale, and it will attempt to strike back. No matter how deadly the blow, the little thing will kick back at you. It is an easy task to conquer a lion, which has sufficient intelligence to know what's what, but insects are so small in their insignificance that it now becomes necessary to inject a second dose of "eye-openers" into the epidermis of the Hovermale kind in order to "show" it the light of the straight and narrow way that it may not deviate therefrom. I had an idea that a blow from the shoulder-blade of truth would addle the little cuss and leave it kicking for a period longer than one week, but by the taking of electric baths and the "forcing" down it of a few pleasant gurgles of the elixir of life, a la Beckham bust-head brand, it has been put on its "all-fours" (four cowhides) again, and seems as ignorant and brazen as ever. It seems I can not put it out of business—it likes to see its name in print too well in papers that have wide and intelligent perusal as The Breathitt County News. Then, it says my articles are assured of a reading, and its yawning for notoriety thereby gets an impetus it would not otherwise get. "Benny takes the keenest delight in reading his own articles." I can't say so much for Lenny's articles—they are too confoundingly stupid and stale for any of his like, apes and monkeys, to read, and, therefore, Hovermale's literary productions are made important and famous by not having any kind of a reading.

Now, L. T. Hovermale, the donkey of demoralized Democracy, the blossom-eyed beaut of butchering, bewitching Beckhamism, the high cockolorum of tea-kettle-bender temperance and the twist-tail of the Campton Courier, has delved to the bottom of his literary belly and belched off the bile of his stupid liver in an attempt to answer an article of mine that appeared in a former issue of The News. There is nothing stunning in his "answer," because there can be no answer to truth, and the whole of my article was Truth, not trash. Ordinarily truth down anything, but as long as anything is "green" it has life, and you can not keep it down just so long as it is "green." That is the attitude I find and leave Hovermale, exactly—and as long as there is "green bark" on a tree, there is hope of "skinning" the "scales" off of it, and if all of the "dead bark" has not already been peeled off of "Long Tall" there is no telling when it will be.

Hovermale's mouth is ever found wide open, under the dirty, dripping dishrag of Democracy, because some day he hopes there to fall in a sweet coffee plum that will fully appease all the wrath and wrath he has wrecked in vilification of the Republican party, and his case of partisan insanity, in consequence, is hopeless and incurable. He is one of the "regulars" and, sometimes, "straights" (?) in the Democratic temperance cause, and deserves a bright and shining crown for his faithfulness that has not yet resulted in "effectiveness," save and except his almost inexhaustable power to increase the demand for "bust-head" by consuming the supply, for, as he says, so truthfully, he has not yet been "put under the table;" his thirst therefor seeming to be never satisfied.

Now, his public and printed confession that he loves to devour the devilish stuff as the most effective way of destroying the saloon evil is important only because it eloquently illustrates the position of the Democratic party on the question of temperance. Hovermale is hypocritical in his pretension for temperance; so is the Democratic party, which no more intends to attempt to destroy the evil, and no more sincere in its pretensions than the vilest saloon keeper, who both makes and sells the damnable stuff. But I am kindly invited to the Democratic record as proof of this position. Very well, there is a better evidence! A majority of the Democratic members of the Senate voted squarely and bravely against the Local Option Bill at the last session of the General Assembly, while not a single Republican voted against it. So this bill, if it had been left solely alone with the Democrats would have never become a law. The Republicans, especially as regards the County Unit Bill, held the balance of power, and they used it without a dissenting voice in the Senate for and in behalf of temperance measures. Let the credit fall where it may—there is one thing certain, no Local Option Bill would have passed but for the unanimous vote it received by the Republican members. So run along, Lenny, and take a back seat, where you and your pup-like party belong on the question of local option.

"An open confession is good for the soul," but Hovermale's confession for the Beckham administration that it is powerless to enforce the Sunday closing law because "saloonists, lawyers and money in the courts have been plentiful sufficiently to interfere with the Governor" in this line for Sabbath observance is not calculated to advance the cause of Democracy with the intelligent voters. The "Baby act" don't only with babies, and most of the voters are out of their swaddling clothes, except those that have been in Louisville, and these "those" will have to wear men's clothing if they vote and have their vote counted, so says the Court of Appeals in a very recent opinion that compliments the Democratic machine with all of the "handsomes" in the art of "intimidation, ballot-box stuffing, police interference, and no-better-than-a-thief-if-you-accept-a-stolen-office." And Lenny says the "law is inadequate and the Governor is handicapped." Not a bit of it, and no such rot as that will be swallowed by temperance advocates who have their eyes open. I thought the trouble was that the law was a little "too adequate" and the timid Beckham administration deemed it unwise and undemocratic to close the saloons on the Sabbath and let the doors of other business houses stand wide open, and because they could not single out the saloons only, the timid, hypocritical, cowardly Beckham Kingdom backed down completely and let the whole thing bang go it uninterrupted. That's it in a nutshell. And if the Governor was against closing the pistol shops and the wade-and-butcher shops on Sunday, also, why did he not call an extra session of the Legislature and let the Republican members help him pass a law that would make a few exceptions so the saloons at least could and would be closed on Sabbath? I can answer. A State campaign is on hand and if the Democrats do "they'll be defeated, and if they don't they'll be defeated."

Hovermale says: "Some men read papers that have brains in their contents, and others read The Breathitt County News and the Yellow Jacket." Now, Oliver, the chief cuckoo of the Campton Courier, is too timid and modest to indulge in fulsome flattery about himself, but Hovermale, his little crackjack, delights in giving eruptions of his passions in self-praise, and if he can not get the big dogs to bark at him he tickles his fancy by barking at himself. The Breathitt County News and the Yellow Jacket are fully able to defend themselves. If either gets after him he will look like a skinned cat of the tommy-rot kind. If bumcombe and mouth-frothing mean brains, the "Salmagundi" column of the Campton Courier has a monopoly on the little things. "Long Tall" in his spurts tries to cover too much territory, and, in consequence, the bull-bellowing boy gets butted off of the bridge at every crossing of the river. In playing the role of a political purist very often he receives stabs in the neck from such high sources that he should take a back seat and ask for repentance for his gail and silliness. The recent Court of Appeals' decision declaring the Louisville officers' usurpers and beneficiaries of stolen goods is enough to knock the kinks out of any ordinary apologist for the sins of the Democratic party, but little Lenny is rather unordinary.

BENJAMIN SEWELL.

Dr. L. H. Blanton Resigns

Dr. L. H. Blanton, who this month rounds out fifty years of active service in the ministry and educational work for the Presbyterian Church, has handed in his resignation as Vice President of the Central University of Danville, with which institution he has been associated since its formation by the consolidation of Centre College with Central University of Richmond.

For years he was Chancellor of Central University, and was well known as a leader of educational work throughout the South. He has had an active career and deserves the well earned rest. The matter of choosing his successor is in the hands of the Board of Trustees of the University, but no choice has yet been made. Since the consolidation of the colleges, Dr. Blanton has been of great value to the new institution, and has been untiring in his efforts for its upbuilding.

Preaching at Elsom.

Rev. J. H. Hudson will address the public at the Elsom school house, on Middle Fork, on Saturday, June 29, at 2 p. m., and on Sunday, June 30, at 10 a. m. A cordial invitation is extended to every one.

Funeral Services.

Rev. C. W. I. Pugh will, on the first Sunday in August, at 10 a. m., preach the funeral of Greenberry Maloney's daughter at the William Day graveyard, on Frozen.

The funeral of Mrs. Lydella Holbrook will be conducted at the graveyard, near Willie Holbrook's, on the first Sunday in September, by Revs. C. W. I. Pugh, A. C. Cooper and James Davis.

Minister Out of a Job.

Rev. J. H. Hudson had the misfortune to lose his ox-yoke last Friday night and he is temporarily out of a job. They were washed clear out of sight by the hard rain and he has been unable to locate them.

Suggestion to Trustees.

As it is nearing the time to employ teachers to instruct your children and your neighbor's children preparatory to coming life and usefulness, I would urge upon you the importance of employing the best qualified teachers you are able to secure, both morally and literally. The influence of the teacher over the child is very strong, therefore employ no immoral teachers. If you do you have done a flagrant wrong and the country must suffer.

Earnestly and truly yours,

HENRY B. NOBLE, Supt.

Rev. J. H. Hudson sold a few days ago a mule, 15 hands high, to George Maloney, of Frozen, for $195.

Mrs. Buddy Russell, daughter of Rev. J. H. Hudson, who has been in bad health for some time, is improving.

F. P. Clay, Jr. Paris, Ky. says: I can recommend Bourbon Poultry Cure to any one who has unhealthy fowls, as I have had great success with it on my own flock. On several occasions I have cured chickens that were too sick to stand up or eat. So far, I have lost but one old fowl this year. I feel confident that a little of this cure in the drink, later as I think keeps the fowls in a healthy condition. Sold and guaranteed by Day Bros.

TWO MINUTE SKETCHES

Ulysses S. Grant.

By J. A. EDGERTON.

He did not know how to quit.

Up to the time of the civil war Ulysses S. Grant was practically unknown. Then fame came upon him suddenly and overwhelmingly. It was as though all of the earlier part of his life had been a waiting time, a preparation. Once in the glare, he was there to stay. No more escape for him. He must play his part henceforth with the eyes of the world upon him. It is questionable if Grant enjoyed this publicity, but whatever his personal feelings, he had the dogged determination to go through with whatever was thrown in his way.

The remark of his wife that "Mr. Grant is an obstinate man" showed a prominent quality that made for the general's success. This trait was shown even in his boyhood. The story is often told of his feat of loading logs unaided and alone. Usually several men did this work, and the duty of the slender lad was to haul the logs to the sawmill. One day he found the men absent. Instead of going home, as most boys would have done, he determined to do the loading himself, so a contrivance was made by the aid of one of the horses enabled him to perform the task. This act made him famous in the neighborhood.

Builded tenacity, sheer hanging on whatever befell, persistence that never let go—this seemed to be the predominant characteristic of Grant. He did not know how to quit. Once started on a task, he seemed to have a physical inability of stopping until the thing was accomplished. If he could not smash his antagonist, he would wear him out. He never planned for retreat. Perhaps he did not know how to retreat. His plan seemed to be to hit first and keep hitting, to drive on and on till he won, to fight and still fight until either his antagonist or himself was incapacitated for further conflict. "I propose to fight it out on this line if it takes all summer," he wired to Washington, and the succeeding campaign showed that he meant all and a little more than he said.

THE BORDEAUX MIXTURE.

For the benefit of those of our readers who may not have a spraying calendar at hand we will give the recipe for the Bordeaux mixture which we are using in our spraying operations this year. Dissolve four pounds of copper sulphate by suspending it in a wooden vessel containing four or five gallons of water. Hot water is preferable if one is in a hurry. Shake the lime in another vessel. This should be done slowly; otherwise it is likely to be lumpy. After it has cooled pour the copper sulphate solution into a barrel and half fill with water. Add five pounds of the lime and fill with water so as to make about fifty gallons in all. If spraying is to be done on a large scale, it is well to have stock solutions of both the sulphate and lime. The lime should not be added to the sulphate solution until ready to use. The solution should be strained through a gunny sack or a thirty mesh brass strainer before it is put into the spray tank. To ascertain if sufficient lime has been added to neutralize the sulphate place a small quantity of the Bordeaux mixture in a saucer and add two or three drops of prussiate of potash (a deadly poison). If this changes the Bordeaux mixture to a reddish brown color, there is not enough lime present, and more lime-water should be added until no reddish precipitate results. In case it is desired to use an arsenate at the same spraying a pound of paris green may be added to every 150 gallons of water. This should be thoroughly mixed with water in a small can and the lumps removed before it is added to the tank. All during the spraying operation the liquid in the tank should be kept thoroughly stirred, as the paris green is heavy and settles to the bottom.

Book Philosophy.

A book is the sole instrument of registering, perpetuating, transmitting thought.—Professor Rogers.
Books are a guide in youth and an entertainment for age. They lay our disappointments asleep.—J. Colver.
He that loveth a book will never want a faithful friend, a wholesome counselor, a cheerful companion, an effectual comforter.—Barrow.
In return for all the services books render me they only ask me to accommodate them with a convenient chamber in some corner of my humble habitation, where they may repose in peace.—Petrarch.

Tales of Cities.

A Young Man's Christian Association building, costing $200,000, is to be erected in Detroit, Mich.
It is said to be safe to predict a north-wind in New York city, for it is from that direction about seven-tenths of the time.

WILL BECKHAM YIELD

To Pressure or Defy Hargis' Influence?

A special from Lexington to the Louisville Herald says: For the first time since the Breathitt feud cases began to occupy the attention of the courts of the State four years ago Gov. J. C. W. Beckham is to be called upon to exercise the pardoning power in behalf of one of the henchmen of James Hargis. It was due to the boast of the Breathitt feud leader and politician that he could get any man in the penitentiary pardoned that caused many of his followers to stand in with him and Sheriff Callahan, and now one of them is circulating a petition through his son asking executive clemency.

It was during the trial of Marcum-Hargis damage suit in Winchester three years ago that several of the principal witnesses against the Hargises were spirited out of the State, and at the conclusion of the trial the attorneys for Mrs. Marcum instituted contempt pro-held several other county offices previous to the time he began his career in the interests of the Breathitt feud leaders, since which time he has become practically an outcast. The money, $1,500, given to him by Jim Hargis as a reward for Mose Feltner if he remained out of the State until after all of the trials growing out of the assassination of Cockrell, Marcum and Dr. Cox, is still tied up in the Winchester bank by order of the court, and a suit instituted by Mose Feltner to get the money is now pending against Felix Feltner.

OWSLEY COUNTY
BOONEVILLE.

H. C. Combs and C. W. Hogg paid Lexington a flying visit last week.

The high waters last week washed away nearly all the corn and other crops planted on the bottoms of Buck creek and the farmers had to replant again.

Harvey & York are now supplying the local trade with the finest beef and mutton ever sold here. You can get it fresh from their shop every other day.

The K. P. Lumber Co.'s railroad suffered considerable damage on Meadow Creek last week from the effects of the heavy rains that almost flooded the country.

Fred Pigg, the smiling and talking drummer from London, was with us again last week. He can explain how he managed to get out of the quicksand in the river at Booneville.

Sunday was decoration day for the Junior Order and they appeared in full regalia and decorated the graves of their dead members at the grave yards at Booneville, Green Hill and the Shepherd burying ground. Premiums were awarded for the finest bouquet of flowers at each place.

Harrison Freeman and his mother, who live just across the river from town, were arrested Sunday for selling liquor without a license, and delivered to Squire Moore. Owing to the absence of witnesses and the fact that a jury will be impaneled here next Monday, the justice transferred the case to the grand jury, whereupon the bondsmen of Harrison surrendered him on his bond on the charge of the murder of John Gilbert Jr., on last election day, and he is now in jail.

Circuit court will convene here next Monday, the 17th, with a great deal of business before it for trial. The Freemans, for the murder of Gilbert, may not be tried, owing to the fact that the Court of Appeals has not passed on Bill Freeman's case, that he appealed from a ten years' sentence at last court. The case of the Commonwealth against Wm. Osborn, charged with the murder of W. D. Wilson, which has had two mistrials, will again come up for trial. He failed to get a trial at the last term from the fact that the jury selected from Perry county did not appear in a sufficient number to have selected a jury from.

Miss Minta Perkins and B. F. Combs, of Hindman, were married in Hindman at the residence of the bride on Monday of last week. They left immediately for Jamestown where they will spend the honeymoon at the exposition. The bride is well known in Jackson. The groom is one of the leading members of the Hindman bar, and is respected. Upon their wedding they will reside at Hind-

A Big Log.

The Swann-Day Lumber Co. sawed a log which was 60 inches in diameter at their mill here last week. They sent two of the boards to the Jamestown exposition.

Circuit Court Adjourned.

Circuit court adjourned Wednesday morning. But little business has been done since our last issue. Most all the common law cases were continued. Jesse Crawford and Clifton Brooks, both colored, were sentenced for one year each for housebreaking. Crawford was sent to the House of Reform. Sol Nix, charged with burning J. B. Noble's store, was acquitted.

Whose Baby?

Last Thursday morning George Maloney and Dan Davidson, while working in the tan bark woods, near Mrs. South's, on Frozen Creek, discovered that the ground had been freshly dug and on investigating found that a new born baby, wrapped in leaves, had been buried there. There were no marks that would lead to its identity. It was buried on top of the highest ridge in that section.

Big Land Deal.

Judge H. F. Davis has bought about 2,000 acres of land on Wolfe creek, in this county, which is well timbered and is in the heart of the coal fields of Eastern Kentucky. He will move to it in a short time and will cut the timber into logs and ties. He will have as his associates J. W. Ford and A. H. Patton, and the business will soon be incorporated, with sufficient capital to operate it. They have bought out all the claimants to the land and the various suits between the South heirs and other parties over a part of this property have been filed away. This is one of the best deals that has been consummated in this county for years.

We are personally acquainted with all the parties connected with this enterprise and bespeak success for them from the start. They will spend thousands of dollars in that section, which will not only help them but will be of vast benefit to all the people in that neighborhood.

HEAVY DAMAGE DONE

In This Section by Hard Rain in Night Time.

The heaviest general rain that has ever fallen in Breathitt county in so short a time fell here and south of here last Friday night. So sudden and severe was the cloud burst that at daybreak Saturday morning the water came rolling down the Kentucky river in a solid bank over five feet high. The river continued to rise, mainly from the Quicksand and Troublesome creeks, and the tide coming so suddenly and in the night time, the timber men were unprepared and a hundred rafts of sawlogs and ties broke from their moorings on the banks and passed here unattended. Loose logs, ties and staves by the thousands floated past Jackson. The corn crop on the big river bottoms in Quicksand and Troublesome are swept away. It is too late to replant. Miles and miles of fences are gone.

Who Can Beat This Egg?

J. M. E. Davis, of Stevenson, brought to The News office a hen egg which weighs one-fourth of a pound, measures 6 1/2 inches around and 8 inches endways. He challenges the world to produce a larger or heavier one. The hen that laid it is a common black and lays eggs one-half the size of this one regularly.

MRS. MARY SAMPLE

Becomes Insane and Is Sent to the Asylum.

Mrs. Mary Sample, of Campton, brooding over the insanity of her daughter, Miss Sallie Sample, who was taken to the Eastern Kentucky Lunatic Asylum at Lexington about a year ago, has caused her own mind to become so badly deranged that she too was several days ago declared insane and was taken to Lexington last Friday afternoon and placed behind the wall which guard her daughter who was sent to the asylum about a year ago having been declared insane by the Wolfe county court. At that time Mrs. Sample was very much worried and declared that she was heartbroken on account of her daughter's condition. Gradually her mind failed until finally she became a maniac. Continually she talked of her daughter's derangement and this topic was her one thought.
